A. Jurisdiction

2. This Court has jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 5 U.S.C. § 552a (a) (4) (B) and under its original jurisdiction pursuant 28 U.S.C. § 1331.

B. Parties

3. Plaintiff, Sunday Adeoshun, is an inmate confined at the Big Spring Cornell Correctional Center (BSCC), Air Park Unit, 3700 Wright Avenue, Big Spring, Texas 79720 that is a private facility. Plaintiff is under the original custody of the U.S. Bureau of Prison (BOP).

4. Defendant is the United States Department of Justice (DOJ), Attorney General that is an agency of the United States of America, and it has possession of and over the records that Plaintiff seeks.

C. Cause of action

5. By U.S. mail-delivery September 28, 2004 to the Freedom of Information Staff of the United States Department of Justice, Bicn Bldg, Room, 7300, 600 East. Street. N.W., Washington, DC. 20530, Plaintiff requested all records pertaining to his prosecution proceedings in case number 01-CR- 13 – 2F held by the “United States Attorney’s office for the Eastern District of Louisiana, Hale Boggs Federal Building 501 Magazine St., Second Floor, New Orleans, Louisiana 70130, “U.S. Attorney, Jim Letten.” Plaintiff specifically requested for, (1) the affidavit of the State Police physical inspection, (2) laboratory worksheets, (3) copies of all memoranda worksheets, and (4) the handwriting expert conclusion.

6. Over ten working days (three months) have passed since the DOJ received Plaintiff’s request and he has received no written response to his request. Plaintiff has not been informally advised that the DOJ intends to deny his request on the grounds that the requested records may be withheld under exception 4 of the FOIA, 5 U.S.C. § 552a (b) (4).

7. Plaintiff has a statutory right to the records that he seeks, and there is no legal basis for defendant’s refusal to disclose them to him.

D. Argument

It has been expressly held that the objective of this provision is to require an agency to take reasonable steps to ensure the informational quality of the records, which it relies upon in making determinations about individual. Connelly v. Comptroller of the currency, 673 F. Supp. 1419 (S.D. Tex. 1987). Plaintiff claims that Defendant violated his right under the Privacy Act 5 U.S.C. § 552a (d) (1) (obligating an agency to provide access to covered records) see also id. § 552a (6) (1) (B) (providing civil remedy for violation of § 552a (d) (1). Bettersworth v. F.D.I.C., 248 F.3d. 386 (5th Cir. 2001).

It is clear for the record that the record requested by Plaintiff fits within the above-mentioned provision. Subsection 552a (a) (5) defines "System of records" as follows:

- (5) The term "System of records" means a group of any record under the control of any agency from which the information is retrieved by the name of the individual or by some identifying particular, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual.

The record illustrates that Defendant failed to comply with this provision when unreasonably failed to respond Plaintiff's request at the time prescribed in such provision. Plaintiff requested portions of his criminal record. (see attachments). Plaintiffs assure that the record requested may exculpate his criminal conviction. For this reason alone, Plaintiff suffers "adverse effect" and damages. He is serving time for what he believes is innocent. The record requested is vital evidence in this matter. The primary goal of the Privacy Act "is to allow individuals on whom information is being compiled and retrieved the opportunity to review the information and request that the agency correct any inaccuracies." Henke v. Dep't of Commerce, 83 F.3d 1453, 1456 (D.C. Cir. 1996).

In 5 U.S.C. § 552a (g) (1), the Privacy Act recognized a civil action for federal agency misconduct fitting in any of four categories, including (a) 5 U.S.C. § 552a (g) (1) (C), which described an agency's failure to maintain an adequate record on an individual, when the result was a determination “adverse” to that individual; and (b) the catchall 5 U.S.C. § 552a (g) (1) (D), which spoke of a violation when someone suffered an “adverse effect” from any of that failure to hew to the terms of the Privacy Act. See Doe v. Chao, 540 U.S. ____ 157 LEd. 2d 1122, 124 S.Ct. ____ (2004).¹

The record depicts that the defendant “intentionally and deliberate” is withholding the record requested by Plaintiff. The Defendant well knows that such record is potentially exculpatory in Plaintiff’s criminal case and is refusing to disclose such information. Plaintiff vigorously challenges the veracity of the version of the facts produced at trial by the government and the unreliable testimony of the witnesses.

E. Prayer

Wherefore, Plaintiff prays that this Court:

(1) Declare that Defendant’s refusal to disclose the records requested by Plaintiff is unlawful:

(2) Order Defendant to make the requested records available to Plaintiff:

¹ Holding that Section 552a (g) (4) provided that in any suit brought under § 552a (g) (1) (C) or 552a (g) (1) (D), in which suit “the court determine [d] that the agency acted in the manner which was intentional or willful, the United States [would] be liable to the individual in an amount equal to the sum of the actual damages sustained by the individual as a result of the refusal or failure.

(3) Award Plaintiff a punitive damages or "adverse effect" damages for $2,000,000 and reasonable Attorney's fees in this action; and

(4) Grant such other further relief as the Court may deem just and proper.
